In the Matter of	)
	)
Digital Audio Broadcasting Systems and	)	MM Docket 99-325
Their Impact on The Terrestrial Broadcasting	)
Systems	)

COMMENTS OF REC NETWORKS

1. REC Networks ("REC") is a supporter of locally owned and diverse radio. REC currently operates several Internet only radio stations. REC also operates several websites including the original LPFM Channel Search Tool. REC Networks also represents the interests of independently owned Low Power FM ("LPFM") broadcast stations and their listeners.

iBiquity's proprietary system will hold back the transition of LPFM and small FM broadcast stations to digital.

2. As iBiquity notes, that the average cost to transition a broadcast station to their proprietary system is $75,000.<sup>1</sup> REC is concerned that many community based LPFM and small FM broadcast stations<sup>2</sup> would not be able to afford such an unreasonable amount. In order to bring the costs down, REC feels that the DAB system used in the United States must be "open source", meaning that a single standard that is disclosed to the public, which allows for other equipment manufacturers to design equipment and offer them at competitive rates. Some LPFM stations have had a difficult time even purchasing a $2,000 EAS decoder. REC feels that those LPFM and small FM stations who wish to go digital and can afford to should be able to. For those stations that can not afford to convert to digital, they should be able to operate in an analog mode. Since the rest of the world has not embraced in-band on-channel (IBOC) DAB<sup>3</sup>, analog FM receivers will continue to be readily available in the marketplace and therefore would not be a major hardship on either consumers or the consumer electronic industry to continue to provide analog or hybrid FM receivers even long after a majority of the larger FM stations have transitioned to all digital.

We continue to oppose IBOC on AM - support DRM

3. REC has been hearing complaints from listeners as well as information from those stations that have been operating AM IBOC during daytime hours that the interference is unacceptable. Unlike FM, AM stations have more of an opportunity to be heard in (and interfere with) international locations. REC supports a harmonized AM broadcast band and we feel that any decisions regarding changing the standards on the AM need to be made at an international level with an agreement similar to NARBA.

4. REC feels that the international community will not embrace iBiquity's IBOC system due to the excessive interference on the sidebands. We feel that the Digital Radio Mondiale (DRM) will be more widely accepted as the AM in-band DAB standard.

5. We do feel that AM stations who are co-owned by an FM licensee who wish to use the iBiquity IBOC system, should run the AM station audio as a secondary audio program on their FM transmitter<sup>4</sup>. If they wish to operate a digital signal on AM, a system proven for AM such as DRM should be employed.

It's in the industry's best interest to provide "High Definition" programming, however it should not be required

6. In the Notice, the Commission questions if there should be a requirement that broadcasters should be required to use sources that they consider as "high definition audio". This may include using direct digital audio sources such as compact discs. The FCC states that the public may be better served by such a requirement.

7. REC feels that it is up to the marketplace (the broadcasters) to determine the quality of the audio they wish to deliver as long as all technical rules (overmodulation) are met. Many LPFM and small FM broadcast stations are owned and operated by religious organizations, which may feature a very limited amount of music programming in favor of more spoken word programming. Imposing a "high definition" requirement on these stations would be subject to longstanding confusion in the interpretation of what is considered "high definition".

8. Based on this, we oppose any "high definition audio" requirement for any broadcast station, large or small.

Multicasting and leasing excess capacity to others

9. As we touched on earlier, the ability for a DAB station to provide multiple audio streams is an exciting new technology for audio broadcasting that should be exploited. We do feel however that before a FM station is permitted to multi-cast, that if they also own an AM station, their AM station must be multicast on the FM stream. This is our alternative to the unproven interference causing AM DAB system.

10. Beyond the AM simulcast requirement that we are asking for, we totally support the ability for broadcasters to be allowed to multicast and lease capacity similar to how they handle SCA today. REC does support a subscription radio model. This is where a specially designed DAB radio can be used to receive a digital signal in an encrypted format. Subscription streams that are operating in an encrypted format are not accessible to the general public (and children) and therefore should not be subject to certain rules such as station identification and indecency<sup>5</sup>. It should also be up to the program provider on whether they wish to provide EAS on the subscription streams.

11. Another possible application we could see the broadcast industry doing with subscription streams is the ability to offer premium broadcast content such as live concerts on a "pay-per-listen" basis<sup>6</sup> similar to special events offered by pay-per-view providers.

<sup>4</sup> - This way, their listeners can experience their favorite AM station in digital and it also addresses nighttime interference issues for some fringe listeners.

<sup>5</sup> - An encrypted digital broadcast which requires a subscription and a special receiver is similar to a customer subscribing to a premium pay channel such as HBO or an over the air subscription television service which presents un-cut motion pictures. While many broadcasters may choose not to broadcast "objectionable" programming on encrypted streams, they have the freedom to if the market dictates. Since access is controlled by subscription, we do not see a major risk that children would hear a broadcast (similar to a child channel surfing the TV at home and running into a premium movie channel).

12. For multiple streams that are accessible to the general public without subscription (including our proposed AM stream), we feel that all broadcast rules including indecency, station identification and EAS should apply.

DAB and LPFM

13. REC feels that the transition to DAB by LPFM stations should be voluntary and that the transition to hybrid and digital operations need to be done at a much slower pace for LPFM stations. This is due to the extreme high cost of the conversion. Most LPFM stations do not receive any Corporation for Public Broadcasting (CPB) funding and are funded by a limited donation source or they are funded "out of pocket" by the station's principals.

14. REC is concerned that because of the fact that a DAB signal would radiate on the first adjacent channel. For LPFM stations, they are not required to protect another LPFM station on the second adjacent channel<sup>7</sup>. It is very possible that two LPFM stations in the same community that wish to operate DAB may not be able to if the two LPFM stations are only two channels apart.

15. REC is currently aware of a few circumstances where LPFM stations are in the same community two channels apart<sup>8</sup>.

16. REC feels that LPFM stations who want to broadcast in digital must be able to protect other LPFM stations on the second adjacent channel as shown:

LP-100 to LP-100	6 km
LP-100 to LP-10	6 km
LP-10 to LP-10	3 km

17. LPFM stations that do not meet these guidelines and wish to broadcast in digital should be allowed to change to another available channel as a minor change, even if the new channel would otherwise be a major change. We also feel that multiple LPFM stations that wish to multicast on a single channel with a single transmitter should be allowed to. Provisions should be put into place where both licensees can "share" the same transmitter but use different call signs and be legally responsible for the content and operation of their specific stream. Overall compliance with technical rules would be shared between all licensees. This could be used as an alternative for time sharing.

18. REC feels that it is premature to require a second adjacent channel restriction between LPFM stations at this time<sup>9</sup>. It would be more appropriate to revisit this issue at a future time based on the status of the DAB marketplace (penetration of receivers and the availability [costs] of equipment).

FM Translators

19. Like with other LPFM stations, translators are not required to protect an LPFM second adjacent channel. This could lead to interference issues similar to those we suggested for two LPFM stations that wish to operate digital. In the attached report<sup>10</sup>, we have identified translators that if allowed to provide digital operation could create harmful interference to the future digital operations of licensed LPFM stations as well as construction permits and pending applications. A significant large majority of the translators are those that were applied for during the "Great Translator Invasion" of 2003.<sup>11</sup>

20. REC feels that translators that wish to convert to digital operation should be required to protect LPFM stations on their second adjacent channel regardless of whether or not the LPFM has converted to hybrid or full-digital operation. LPFM stations are already protecting translator's second adjacent channels.<sup>12</sup>

21. Unlike with protecting LPFM from other LPFM stations, we feel that it is very appropriate at this time to recommend requirements that all new and modified translator applications protect the second adjacent channel of an LP-100 station. This will permit both LPFM and translators to be able to establish digital service with the additional buffer of protection.

<sup>11</sup> - See "FM Translator Auction Filing Window and Application Freeze". Report no. AUC-03-83-A (Auction No. 83), DA 03-359, released February 6, 2003.

Conclusion

22. REC feels that overall, DAB will benefit consumers by providing those who wish to purchase compatible receivers more choices and better quality. As we go into the implementation and eventual transition to DAB, we must take into consideration that some licensees will be slower to transition than others. We do feel however, that the Commission is going completely the wrong way as it relates to AM DAB. The iBiquity system has not been proven on the AM band and we feel that the alternative, DRM is a better option. LPFM stations need to be able to transition to digital at their own pace. LPFM stations must be protected from other LPFM and translator stations that also want to go digital.

APPENDIX "B"

LPFM STATIONS AND APPLICATIONS SUBJECT TO INTERFERENCE FROM FM TRANSLATORS ON SECOND ADJACENT CHANNELS

ABOUT THIS REPORT

REC has compiled a list of all LPFM licensees, construction permits and pending applications. We then looked for translators located on second adjacent channels. We then "sub-classed" each translator based on the translator's farthest distance to it's 60 dBu (50, 50) service contour in any direction. If the distance of the translator's 60dBu (50, 50) service contour overlaps with the LPFM 100 dBu (50, 10) interference contour (based on both stations having omnidirectional antennas and no terrain obstructions), the translator will be included on this list.

TRANSLATOR "SUB-CLASSES"

The following "sub-classes" were assigned to each translator record and will be used in the attached data:

If the translator's 60dBu service contour is:	REC "Sub Class" Designator	Overlap at (km)
5.3km or less	D1	6
greater than 5.3 km but less than or equal to 7.3 km.	D2	8
greater than 7.3 km but less than or equal to 9.3 km.	D3	10
greater than 9.3 km but less than or equal to 11.3 km.	D4	12
greater than 11.3 km but less than or equal to 13.3 km.	D5	14
greater than 13.3 km but less than or equal to 15.3 km.	D6	16
greater than 15.3 km but less than or equal to 17.3 km.	D7	18
greater than 17.3 km	D8	21

READING THE DATA

Each LPFM station will be represented by a header. In this header, it will include:

Facility ID - Channel - LPFM Party Name

Community and State of License - Application Type (prefix) - Application Status

Each translator record will include:

Facility ID - Call Sign - Community and State of License - Channel - REC's "sub class" (see above) - Application Status - Distance (in km) from LPFM.
